PACKED HOUSE LAST NIGHT.

The popular Howard-Dorset Company last night succeeded in filling the Washington Theater. The audience was made up of enthusiastic supporters of this clever organization. The play presented was "The Golden Giant Mine," a Western melodrama of much merit, and was admirably played. Mr. Howard was met with the usual ovation and was loudly applauded. Miss Flora Dorset was still all that could be expected of her and was well received throughout the evening. The specialists were way above the ordinary. For tonight "Why Jones Left Home" will be the offering.

LAST GRAND RALLY

Hon. Sam J. Pugh at the Courthouse Last Night

The Republican meeting in the Courthouse last night was an enthusiastic one. Hon. Allan D. Cole, in presenting the speaker, in substance said—

We are on the eve of a conflict fraught with tremendous consequences, not only to our own Nation, but also to the rest of the world. For commerce and the arts of civilization have drawn the peoples of the earth so close together that the prosperity of one Nation contributes, in a greater or less degree, to the prosperity of all the others. Therefore the eyes of the world are upon us, and we are expected to continue the beneficent policy of the Republican party under which this country has for so long time enjoyed an unexampled and ever increasing prosperity. So far as the Presidency is concerned, there can no longer be any doubt that Theodore Roosevelt, the greatest statesman of his times, is going to be triumphantly elected. In this contest, unapologetically, Kentucky's electoral vote will not be a factor. But shall we suffer our President's hands to be tied by the election of a Democratic House of Representatives? This consideration comes nearer home to us; and here, indeed, we can become a factor. Republicans of Mason county, upon your efforts tomorrow may hinge the redemption of the Ninth District; and upon that may hinge the organization of the next House of Representatives. Roosevelt and Bennett therefore expect every man to do his duty. The speaker of the evening has twice carried our banner to victory and this fact bids us take courage and to remember that what has been done may be done again. His presence also reminds us that he comes from a county whose loyalty to Republican principles is that of the needle to the pole. This loyalty, as a worthy son of old Lewis, he has himself often shown in many a hard fought fight; but never in so pre-eminent a degree as when rather than imperil, as it seemed to some, our party's chances of success, he magnanimously declined to be our standard-bearer, and is found here tonight triumphantly fighting as a private in the ranks.

I say to you, that any man who is capable of such a sublime act of self-resuscitation has in him the elements of true greatness. I have, therefore, both the pleasure and the honor of presenting to you that exemplary citizen, that accomplished lawyer, that magnanimous Republican, the Honorable Samuel J. Pugh.

Mr. Pugh made a forceful speech, which was well received by the large crowd present.

Deafness Cannot be Cured by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

IN

PRICES 10c, 20c and 30c.

About Those Prices!

The usual Democratic bugaboo about American manufactures being sold at lower prices abroad is again in full blast, but what of it? Admitting, for the sake of argument, the whole charge, what does it amount to? Who has suffered? Not the American wage earner, because there is no instance on record of any American manufacturer having asked his work people to accept less wages on that portion of his output which he is compelled to sell at lower prices abroad than at home because of the pauper paid labor made goods with which he has to compete in foreign countries. Inasmuch as the American wage earner has not suffered, it follows that neither the farmer, the storekeeper, the house owner nor any of those whose welfare depends on the wages of the wage earner have suffered.

Supposing, also for the sake of argument, that it was made compulsory by law, or even by tariff legislation, that nothing of American manufacture should be sold for more money at home than what could be got for it abroad, competing against the cheap labor referred to, what would be the result? Would not the American wage earner be obliged to accept lower wages not only on what of his make is sold abroad, but on all the output of his brain and hands? More than that, would he not see the call for his labor reduced, as it is notorious that goods made in cheap labor countries are offered and pushed for sale in the mighty market of the United States at even lower prices than in the country of their manufacture and other countries?

But, say the Democrats, the American people as a whole are suffering because an American sewing machine, for instance, has been or can be bought for less money in London than in New York. Presuming that to be so, what of it? The American workman who made that machine has been paid the same wages for making it as he was paid for making the one which was sold in New York. Consequently he has had money enough to buy his flour—a barrel instead of a pound, as in 1893-96—and the American farmer has thus been able to give his hard-working wife the money to buy a sewing machine and thus lighten her cares. Her purchase of that machine leaves room for another to be made, and the American sewing machine maker gets his wages over again. So it goes on, an endless chain, benefiting somebody as each and every link is paid out. What is true of the sewing machine is true of every other line American manufactures which finds a market abroad. The larger our factory product the larger the weekly payroll and the larger demand in every line of American effort.

No Poison in Chamberlain's Cough Remedy.

From Napier (New Zealand) Herald—Two years ago the Pharmacy Board of New South Wales, Australia, had an analysis made of all the cough medicines that were sold in that market. This exception was Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, made by the Chamberlain Medicine Company, Des Moines, Iowa, U. S. A. The absence of narcotics makes this remedy the safest and best that can be had; and it is with a feeling of security that any mother can give it to her little ones. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is especially recommended by its makers for coughs, colds, croup and whooping cough. This remedy is for sale by all Druggists.

Master Harry Bleich is recovering from his recent illness.

Seven carloads of cattle were shipped from this city yesterday over the L. and N. to the Eastern markets.

Mr. E. L. Storm, formerly of this city, is now located in Bedford, Ind., having purchased the Bottling Works there.

A series of official reports of the bombardment of Port Arthur by the Japanese have reached Tokio. The burden of the reports is that the Japanese forces are attacking with increasing effectiveness and are inflicting heavy damage on the Russian forts.

A TRUE AMERICAN TYPE.

Theodore Roosevelt's Estimates of the Farmer Truthfully Given.

It remains true now, as it always has been, that in the last resort the country districts are those in which we are surest to find the old American spirit, the old American habits of thought and ways of living. Conditions have changed in the country far less than they have changed in the cities, and in consequence there has been little breaking away from the methods of life which have produced the great man.

jority of the leaders of the republic in the past. Almost all of our great presidents have been brought up in the country, and most of them worked hard on the farms in their youth and got their early mental training in the healthy democracy of farm life.—Roosevelt at Bangor, Me., Aug. 27, 1902.

The countryman, the man on the farm, more than any other of our citizens today, is called upon continually to exercise the qualities which we like to think of as typical of the United States throughout its history, the qualities of rugged independence, masterful resolution and individual energy and resourcefulness. He works hard—for which no man is to be pitied—and often he lives hard—which may not be pleasant—but his life is passed in healthy surroundings, surroundings which tend to develop a fine type of citizenship. In the country, moreover, the conditions are fortunately such as to allow a closer touch between man and man than too often we find to be the case in the city. Men feel more vividly the underlying sense of brotherhood, of community of interest.—Bangor, Me., Aug. 27, 1902.

The man who tills his own farm, whether on the prairie or in the woodland, the man who grows what we eat and the raw material which is worked up into what we wear, still exists more nearly under the conditions which obtained when the "embattled farmers" of '76 made this country a nation than of any others of our people.—Roosevelt at Sioux City, S. D., April 6, 1903.

The true welfare of the nation is indissolubly bound up with the welfare of the farmer and the wage-worker, of the man who tills the soil and the mechanic, the handcraftsman, the laborer. If we can insure the prosperity of these two classes we need not trouble ourselves about the prosperity of the rest, for that will follow as a matter of course.—Roosevelt at Opening of the Pan-American Exposition, May 20, 1901.

The success of the capitalist, especially of the bankers, is conditioned upon the prosperity of both working-man and farmer.—"The Law of Civilization and Decay, American Ideals," Page 367.

In a country like ours it is fundamentally true that the well being of the tiller of the soil and the wage-worker is the well being of the state.—Roosevelt, Sioux City, S. D., April 6, 1903.

POLICY TOWARD SOUTH

President's Plan Outlined Long Ago—Made Careful Study of Problem When Governor.

Has Sought Information From Best People, White and Colored. Fewer Lynchings.

[From an Editorial in Outlook of Oct. 29.] The Outlook happens to be in possession of information which leads it to suggest that no man perhaps ever went into the White House with a keener desire to be of real and permanent service to the former slave states than Mr. Roosevelt.

In the most careful manner the president has sought information from the highest type of both white and colored people concerning the political desires and needs of both the black and the white races and the status and defects of their relations to the federal government. This information was sought by the president before he became president and even before he became vice president.

The Outlook happens to know that while Mr. Roosevelt was holding the position of governor of New York he outlined a policy which he would attempt to pursue if he should ever be called to the presidency. The policy which he then stated he would pursue was one which the daily press of the south as well as the public men of the south had long advocated. The Outlook happens to know, further, that the president has pursued and consistently followed the policy outlined before he became president as nearly as it has been possible for any human being to do.

To begin with, in Mississippi the president, while not seeking to overthrow or ignore the old political machine, went straight to the heart of conditions and selected for his adviser E. S. Wilson, a gold Democrat, the former secretary to L. Q. C. Lamar, the Mississippi correspondent of the New Orleans Picayune and the brother-in-law of Governor Longino. It would at least seem that this man had the confidence and respect of the south, and of Mississippi people especially. From the day of his appointment by the president this gentleman has been one of the president's southern advisers. In seeking his advice upon southern politics the president insisted upon one limitation, and only one. His adviser was to recommend none but clean men to him for appointment, giving Republicans the first consideration, but where clean Republicans could not be found, then Democrats of good and proved character. The result is that the United States district attorney is a white Democrat, and the same is true of the register of the United States land office and the United States marshalship. These are native southern white men who stand high in the estimation of their neighbors, and these are but examples of what has been done in dozens of other cases in Mississippi alone.

Now, as to the negro officeholder in the south. The complaint that has been made against every Republican president since the civil war has been that many offices were filled by a horde of ignorant and characterless colored politicians. How did President Roosevelt meet this situation? He has appointed to office in the south fewer colored men than any other president, and in doing so has not only decreased the quantity, but improved the quality. He has not only tried to do so, but has actually done it.

To how many of our readers has it ever occurred that, notwithstanding all the discussion that has taken place regarding Mr. Roosevelt and the south, practically no criticism has been made upon the character of the men holding office under him, white and black alike? Fault has been found in a few cases because of their color, but not with their character. Not only has the class of white and colored men appointed to office in the south been of such a high character as to escape criticism, but Mr. Roosevelt has done what no other president has done, and what the south has all along claimed should be done. He has appointed colored men living in the north to important positions in that section, as, for example, William H. Lewis, appointed to the place of assistant United States district attorney for Massachusetts.

What the president has done in Mississippi in lifting up and purifying the public service has been done in a larger and smaller degree in every southern state. Special examples were the throwing over of the old and corrupt gang in Louisiana and the appointment of former Governor Thomas G. Jones and Judge Roulhac, native white southerners, to important positions in Alabama.

The main thing, however, that the public ought to know about is that in failing to be controlled by old and corrupt political organizations, in going outside of his party to select men of high character for office, the president was running a political risk which required the very highest degree of moral courage and devotion to public duty to perform. He was taking a chance, as far as his political fortunes were concerned, which no other president had ever taken. Time and again Mr. Roosevelt was warned of the political risk he was taking, but not once did he change his policy in the slightest degree, and on more than one occasion replied to friends that he would rather be defeated for the presidential nomination than secure it by yielding to the vicious element of the south, Republican or Democratic.

Over and over again it has been asserted by those who have not taken the time or the pains to investigate the real facts in the matter that President Roosevelt's southern policy has caused an increase of lawlessness at the south, as indicated by lynchings, burnings, etc. What is the truth? Lynchings in this country reached the highest number in 1892, when Benjamin Harrison was president, the number of lynchings for that year being 236. The next highest number was in 1885, under the presidency of Grover Cleveland, when they numbered 210. In 1893, also during the presidency of Grover Cleveland, there were 200 lynchings. These periods represent the high water mark of lynching. During the two years in which Mr. Roosevelt has been in the White House there have been fewer lynchings than in any year since 1885; in 1902 there were 96 lynchings and in 1903 there were but 104. These two years represent the smallest number of lynchings since 1885.

We make the prediction that before he leaves the White House the south will learn that it has never had a warmer or more consistent friend in the presidential chair than Theodore Roosevelt.

River News

The Greenwood was up last night for Portmouth.

The Courier is still in the Cincinnati-Louisville trade.

Rivermen believe that the coal run will be retarded this season almost as long as last year, when it was nearly Christmas before coal was shipped. As a usual thing, however, pilots eat their Thanksgiving dinner on board the steamers on the way South with tugs.

The only surviving officer of the Federal vessel Tawah, which was destroyed by the Confederates forty years ago near Jeffersontown, Tenn., is Captain James H. Linn of Paducah. Captain Linn, who is 83 years old, says that he lost $1,400 worth of personal property when the boat went to the bottom.

The visit of Captain Gordon Green of Pittsburgh to Cincinnati several days ago, owner of the Green Line of steamers, resulted in an agreement with Superintendent F. A. Laidley, of the White Collar Line, by which the Green Line packets and the White Collar Line up-river boats will handle freight from Cincinnati to Pittsburgh. The combination between the lines has brought about the entering already of Captain Green's steamers Greenwood and Greenland in the trade in this section of the Ohio, the Greenwood now running through to Portsmouth and the Greenland making daily trips to this city.
